Reflection, Translucency and Transparency

Colorful, intriguing and mysterious, glass captivates our attention and begs for closer inspection. Creating the look of glass is about learning the secrets to the sparkle. What makes the brain read what it sees as glass? To paint glass, you must learn how to "see" glass. Paul guides you, step-by-step, through the basics of reflection, translucency and transparency in this workshop as you paint a stunning still life of glass together using a planned approach. You will learn how to work in thin layers of washes to build up luminous colors, and learn how to finish your painting beautifully.
